↓ The Scottish Highlands

Free-roaming reindeer and fresh-caught fish.

Killiehuntly Farmhouse (from $269 for two people; killiehuntly.scot) is a 17th-century estate nestled in the Scottish Highlands, two and a half hours north of Glasgow and Edinburgh. A Danish couple recently gave the place a Scandi-Scot renovation, painting it in serene grays and adding “hygge” touches like sheepskin throws (there’s not a tartan in sight). Located in Cairngorms National Park (the U.K.’s largest), Killiehuntly is next to five mountain peaks, making for first-rate skiing in winter and mountain biking, hiking, and rock climbing the rest of the year (Craggan Outdoors offers guided climbs and zip-lining; cragganoutdoors.co.uk). Your neighbors are mountain hares, ospreys, and the country’s only free-roaming reindeer herd. Fish for arctic char and wild brown trout at Loch an t-Seilich, sample single malts at the Glenlivet and Dalwhinnie distilleries, and tour the equally bucolic neighboring Glenfeshie Estate (glenfeshie.scot), seen on The Queen. For dinner, return to Killiehuntly, which doubles as a working farm; meals include fish caught nearby, produce from the garden, and homemade breads and jams.

↑ Maasai Mara National Reserve, Kenya

Millions of wildebeests and Swahili spiced chicken.

The Angama Mara safari lodge (from $850 per person; angama.com) sits on the three hills where Sydney Pollack shot Out of Africa. That fact, plus sweeping views of the Great Rift Valley below, made this a covetable site for Steve and Nicky Fitzgerald, the husband-and-wife conservation and hospitality team who opened the lodge in 2015. Named for a Swahili phrase meaning “suspended in midair,” the property has 30 tented, stilt-raised suites, each with a terrace overlooking the valley, and a communal pavilion with a pool (pictured). Elephants, lions, cheetahs, and giraffes can be seen year-round—tour company Deeper Africa offers customized safaris for your interests (from $5,199 per person for nine days; deeperafrica.com)—but visit between July and October to witness the Great Migration, when millions of wildebeests and zebras cross the Serengeti Plain. At the lodge, cap off a day of game driving with a sunset gin cocktail and a family-style bush barbecue starring Swahili spiced chicken, locally called kuku.
