Deeper Botswana

DAY-BY-DAY ITINERARY

Safari in style

With its winding channels, azure lagoons, papyrus reeds and patchwork of savannas, the world's largest inland delta is a paradise for wildlife.

The majestic Okavango Delta is home to a high density of species and water-adapted animal behaviors unique to Botswana. Explore areas well-known for impressive guiding and once in a lifetime wildlife viewing. Witness lions hunt buffalo. Embark on water-based safaris. View wild dogs. Stay in the heart of the Moremi Game Reserve in the Delta—considered one of the best places to view wildlife on the planet—and relax in the best accommodations that Botswana has to offer.

A photograph of a herd of elephants in a savanna landscape. In the foreground, several elephants are visible, including a large adult and a smaller calf. They are standing in a grassy field with some low-lying vegetation. In the background, there are more elephants and a dense line of trees. A white bird is flying in the sky above the elephants. The overall scene is a natural, wild environment.

Botswana is home to over
elephants, the largest population in any country.

Khwai Private Reserve is 495,000 acres of Botswana's best kept secret. It features an exciting diversity of habitat – winding river channels, acacia woodlands and open savannas. Families of elephants move south to north with babies clinging to their mothers – each one wading single file into the water and climbing up the banks on the other side of the channel. Lion cubs play and climb trees on the savanna while waiting for their mothers. The savanna is also home to cheetah, active wild dog packs and leopards moving stealthily through the grasses. Superior guides, great wildlife, lovely food, and beautiful surroundings.

Rangers are the unsung heroes of the conservation world.

Khwai Rangers

Be on the frontline with the rangers protecting the 494,000 acres (200,000 hectares) wilderness that makes up Khwai Private Reserve. You'll go out before dawn when the tracks are fresh and undisturbed. The rangers closely monitor the concession's predators and can use your help identifying individual predators and logging sightings. This important work assists in building a complete profile and history of a pride, a pack, or an individual animal. You'll spend 4 to 6 hours tracking wildlife, capturing data, patrolling the area as well as checking on conservation projects. Proceeds from your experience go back into conservation efforts in Khwai Private Reserve. These funds help to equip the ranger team with their surveillance and anti-poaching efforts on the concession, as well as aid with further research needed in the reserve.

Travel deeper into the oldest protected section of the Okavango into the iconic Moremi Game Reserve. The island was the traditional hunting ground for Botswanan Chief Moremi. Floods in this area are more regular and predictable than they are lower down in the Delta, creating what is commonly accepted as the best place in Botswana to view wildlife. It's known as Botswana's most diverse habitat, showcasing permanent lagoons, seasonal floodplains, drier savannas, woodlands, and acacia forests. Here the wilderness surrounds you each minute of the day.

Enjoy a back of the house environmental tour to see solar, water purification and recycling sectors of this environmentally responsible camp.

Elephant Haven is Botswana's only elephant orphanage.

Without a mother's care, a baby elephant cannot survive alone in the wild. Elephant Haven gives these babies a chance to survive, thrive, and rediscover familial bonds that are so important to elephants as a species. By partnering with villagers from all around the Okavango, the orphanage, which opened in 2017, has eyes and ears far and wide. Their first two weeks are the most crucial, as their handlers must get these little ones to trust them, treat any illnesses or injuries, and teach them to feed from a bottle to get the nutrition they need.

Every elephant has a 20-year commitment from Elephant Haven. Currently the elephants at the orphanage are ages 6-months to around 4 years old. They are cared for 24 hours a day by dedicated handlers, and the youngest babies are fed bottles of formula every 3 hours around the clock. When they are becoming more independent, the elephants are moved from the boma area to a 1,000-acre soft release area just four miles down the road. Here they have no human contact, but an electric fence keeps them safe from predators and from following other wild herds away from their safe space. At about age 5 the elephants will be collared and then moved out to live the rest of their life wild.

Depart from Tawana Camp by helicopter for a short flight into the wilderness around Elephant Haven. Return by helicopter is a social enterprise that works to bridge the gap between the tourism sector and local communities in northern Botswana. As conservation and development starts with people and communities, Travel for Impact provides a channel for travelers and the safari industry to take ownership and responsibility in supporting community projects. They focus on four main pillars: Children & Youth, Conservation, Culture & Heritage and Women.

Travel for Impact

One program is AGLOW-Pokolong which assists Maun's disadvantaged elderly who no longer have family to care for them. AGLOW provides food and care, makes home visits and spends time with them. Deeper Africa travelers often donate clothing to AGLOW for the cold weather.

Proceeds

from your safari with Deeper Africa supports Travel for Impact.
